WCS WEBINAR

Route to Resilience is Collaboration, Nature and Technology

Cities need to urgently address climate change and plan how to cope with its effects, both now and in the future. Speakers at the WCS Webinar "Planning for a Rainy Day: Climate Ready Cities" share solutions and reveal the importance of understanding how cities, stakeholders and urban systems are intertwined: "if you don't look far enough, you won't be able to understand the connections."

CLOSING REMARKS

Hugh Lim

Executive Director
Centre for Liveable Cities

How has COVID-19 impacted the model of global cities as hubs in the flow of corporate talent, tourists, investors and other key economic players? Hear how our speakers expect retail, office and tourism spaces in cities to be reconfigured in this and other contexts such as digitalisation. Hugh Lim, Executive Director of the Centre for Liveable Cities, will sum up WCS 2021 by giving some closing remarks.
